

79 REPRODUCTION PERMISSION

Hello Jessica

Thanks for getting back to me. Yes, please can you have this added to the agenda of the next meeting on 13 October, as the book's copy deadline is November 1. All the dedicated page is doing is telling readers the 'Butcher' Breads story, and how his remains came to be kept at the Town Hall.

I've attached a lower-res version of the image chosen by the book picture editor, plus the accompanying page text.

I have no definite idea of the planned print run, but I expect the initial run will be around 2000 copies.

Hope this is helpful, and fingers crossed you are happy to have this publicity for an intriguing Rye story and unique Rye sight.

Best wishes,

Norman

Hello Norman,

Requests such as this have to be considered by the Council. I can request that it is added to the agenda at our next meeting on Monday 13 October.

We will require some additional information, please.

1. We will need sight of the picture – if the image size is an issue, I recommend www.wetransfer.com
2. Details of the likely print run/circulation
3. Any text that will be accompanying the image

Best wishes

Jessica

Subject: Using picture of 'Butcher' Breads remains to highlight Rye in 2026 East Sussex travel book

Importance: High

Dear Rye Town Council,

I was invited into the Town Hall earlier this year to see the 'Butcher Breads' remains, in order to feature them in an East Sussex travel book I'm writing for the best-selling global 111 Places series (details: 111places.com), to be published in June 2026.

The picture editor has chosen the picture they want for the book, and I'd just like confirmation that you are happy to have a picture published in the book alongside a dedicated page telling readers the story behind the picture?

I'm happy to share the chosen image with you if you like, but the file size will be around 10MB.

Thanks for your time, and I look forward to hearing back from someone soon.

Best wishes,
Norman Miller
